

Russia Quits Talks On Arms

Area Issues Feature Election

POLITICAL leaders of both major parties last night predicted a moderate to heavy vote at today's General Election.

Interest generated by the lively contest for judge of the 43rd Judicial District, encompassing Monroe and Pike County, is expected to bring out a large percentage of the qualified electors.

Local races undoubtedly will swell the outpouring of voters in a number of districts, party workers said.

The contest for the judgeship involves the incumbent, Judge Fred W. Davis, Republican, who is being opposed by Russell L. Mervine, Democrat.

Also to be elected are a county treasurer, where J. Nelson Westbrook, Democrat, and Donald V. Dimmick, Republican, are the nominees; coroner, where Daniel G. Warner is unopposed; county jury commissioners, where Harry T. Hamblin, Democrat, and Clair M. Learn, Republican, are also assured of election, and county surveyor, where Edward C. Hess, Democrat, is opposed by Guyton Kemper, Republican.

Aside from the contests for county offices, two other issues will hold the attention of all voters. They are the constitutional amendments providing absentee ballots for civilians and laying the groundwork for a bonus for Korean War veterans.

Eleven districts will vote on the proposal to merge the Hamilton Township School District with the Stroud Union District.

Various township and borough contests are attracting considerable interest. These include the races for burgess, councilmen, township supervisors, tax collectors, school directors, assessors, constables, auditors and polling place officers.

The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Light Vote Expected At State Polls

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4 (AP)—Missus statewide candidates and lacking any controversial ballot issue, Pennsylvanians in expected small numbers vote tomorrow in strictly municipal elections.

State political leaders, backed by the pleadings of local party men and women, have urged registered Pennsylvanians to go to the polls.

But from all indications, political and otherwise, the voter turnout tomorrow in the Keystone State is expected to be very light—probably half, or less, of the eligible 5,333,056.

The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Partially responsible for the apparent apathy is the lack of a statewide contest or issue, although there are two questions on the ballot which every Pennsylvania voter is asked to decide.

The two ballot questions which face all voters in the 8,874 precincts of the state's 67 counties:

1. Should 150 million dollars be borrowed to help pay a bonus of up to $500 to Pennsylvania veterans of the Korean War?
2. Should absentee voting privileges be extended to citizens ill at home or unavoidably out of town on Election Day?

The two questions have the backing of both Democratic and Republican organizations. Veterans groups, particularly, are plugging the Korean bonus.

Republicans hold a registration edge over the Democrats in the state—2,905,370 against 2,457,832.

Registration

In Philadelphia, the state's largest city, Democrats edged ahead of the Republicans in registration for the first time in history.

The chairman of the two big political parties base their hopes on local successes aimed primarily at strengthening control of municipal governments and courthouses.

Republican State Chairman George L. Bloom, plugging for a heavy turnout, said local elections give citizens an opportunity to exert home rule.

Joseph M. Barr, Democratic state chairman, said in his statement that the so-called "odd year" elections made it difficult "to arouse the interest of the electorate and get a large number of citizens to vote."

Each party, naturally, will weigh the local results as an indication of some trend for 1958, when the state elects a governor and a U.S. senator.

Locally tomorrow, the election picture is focused on candidates for mayors, district attorneys, judges, magistrates, councilmen and thousands of minor posts.

Among the mayors to be chosen are those in Pittsburgh, Scranton and 21 of the state's 47 third class cities.

District Attorney

Philadelphia's hottest battle, and even this hasn't generated much heat, is for district attorney. Mayor Richardson Dilworth, Democrat, has refused to campaign for his party's ticket. His description: "It stinks."

Even that comment, however, hasn't aroused the voters and isn't expected to hurt the re-election bid of Democratic Dist. Atty. Victor Blanc over Republican Emil F. Goldhaber.

The incumbent Democratic mayors of Pittsburgh and Scranton are seeking unprecedented fourth terms—and the experts predict they'll win with little trouble. Running again are Pittsburgh's David L. Lawrence, who is also Pennsylvania's Democratic national committeeman, against Judge John Drew, and Scranton's James F. Hanlon against a former city councilman, Harry A. Lewis.

Community Chest Reaches $53,114

WITH SOME major divisions falling far behind in making collections the Community Chest struggled upward to 68 percent of its quota this week.

The Chest quota this year is $78,243. At yesterday afternoon's report meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel television room, Clifford Cramer, campaign chairman told division leaders:

"We have some good news this afternoon. But there are some very disturbing weak spots in what we have to report also."

"So far, our records indicate we have collected donations or pledges totaling $53,114.82. That's about 68 percent of our quota."

"The brightest piece of news we can give you today concerns the Bell Telephone Co. and its workers. Reports turned in this afternoon show that contributions from the Bell office total $2,012.10. That figure is $748.60 higher than the $1,263.50 turned in by Bell last year."

"This means that the company and its workers increased their overall contributions by more than 59 percent to meet the higher needs of Community Chest agencies."

"Perhaps the most wonderful part about the news is the fact that it shows such substantial increases in the support of Bell workers themselves. It would seem to me to show that the rank and file employees and their families are solidly behind the Community Chest and all that it stands for within the community."

"I think that most of our trouble in the present campaign can be traced to lack of contact on the part of the workers with the potential donor. We've had dozens of calls from people in all areas of the county wanting to know when Chest workers are going to call on them. This is true in industry and businesses as well as in outlying residential areas."

"The one thing we've got to do, then, is to make the contacts and call on these people. Unless the contact is made, no contribution will be made. We have had a tough bout with the flu and illness during recent weeks. I don't think there's any doubt that has held us up for a couple of weeks."

"But we've got to make every effort to call on donors immediately. We will have one more full-fledged report meeting—and only one. That will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 13 at 4 p.m. at the hotel."

Division reports showed the following at yesterday's meeting:

Resorts — $3,707.22 reported out of a quota of $7,612; Industrial — $17,789.44 out of $23,164; Trade — $11,352.07 out of $12,941; Professional — $7,530.86 out of $9,641; Public Service — $4,542.35 with a quota of $4,822; Clubs and Organizations — $435 out of $1,800; Stroudsburg — $1,161.25 out of $1,943; East Stroudsburg — $625.24 out of $810; County — $1,971.39 out of $5,267; Barrett — $4,000 out of $12,000.

Senator Gives Scolding To Businessmen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) gave a public scolding today to businessmen he accused of dodging questions on whether they had paid out money "to keep the unions away."

McClellan, chairman of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, spoke out after the committee had taken testimony from a group of Flint, Mich., businessmen.

"I can't understand you business people, who come up here and evade questions like that," McClellan said.

One after another, the witnesses testified that their labor troubles vanished like magic after they had kicked in thousands of dollars to a labor relations firm.

They said they understood at least part of the money went to Teamsters Union officials — for fishing trips, Christmas presents, journeys from Michigan to California for the Rose Bowl football game, etc.

But they refused to give direct answers when asked if they did not consider their payments a form of blackmail.

McClellan grew stern during the testimony of Abe Schreiber, a partner in the Flint firm of Roy-alite Co., a wholesale electrical supply house.

Schreiber testified he had paid $2,000 in 1954 and the same amount in 1955 to an agent of Labor Relations Associates, a Chicago firm headed by Nathan Shefferman.

The committee has identified the Shefferman firm as a union-busting outfit.

Refusing to agree that he was paying blackmail, Schreiber said he was paying "for a service that was being rendered."

He said it was at this time he agreed to pay $2,000 plus a $100-a-month fee to George Kamenow, a Shefferman agent.

Question

"You actually felt you were being blackmailed," McClellan snapped at Schreiber. "He was keeping the union away."

McClellan also said his committee is trying to perform a public service, and now has found business people reluctant to help.

"I just don't appreciate it," the senator said. "To me, this sort of practice is a racket."

McClellan said the evidence is clear that Teamsters officials engaged in "coercion to get money to go fishing, to go to football games, to the worker gets nothing."

Earlier, the senator had given this sum-up:

"It seems to me that we're developing a pattern of what seems to be a payoff to union officials to have them disregard the rights of the working man."

Air Force Takes Over Investigation Of 'Object'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Air Force today undertook an investigation of a huge and strangely lighted mystery object reported to have flashed over Western Texas.

Reports of strange flying objects have been popping up for years, but this one had the support of a variety of witnesses, including a sheriff and one of his deputies.

It impressed the Air Force sufficiently to call for at least a preliminary investigation.

"We don't investigate all of them, after all," an Air Force spokesman said.

Unusual

A most unusual thing about the object reported over Texas Saturday and Sunday was that witnesses said their car engines stopped and their lights went out when they drove near it.

It was variously described as a burning mass, a big light, and an egg-shaped object 200 feet long. Meanwhile, there were reports on strange things happening in the skies over Chicago and over the Virginia-North Carolina border.

Three policemen and a fireman in Chicago's suburban Elmwood Park said they saw a peculiar round glowing thing in the early morning sky today. They said their car lights appeared to dim as they kept the prow car spotlight focused on the thing.

At Martinsville, Va., Mrs. Ruby Hairston said she and her family saw a strange red glare last night while driving to Bassett, Va., from Philpott Lake on the Carolina border.

Daily Record To Post Election Returns

AS QUICKLY AS the election returns are compiled and turned over to the county election board to count, they will be relayed to The Daily Record newsroom by special telephone.

The returns will then be posted on a large bulletin board at the main Lenox St. entrance to the newspaper building. The public is invited to view the returns as they are assembled on the bulletin board.

Humphrey Rejects Cut

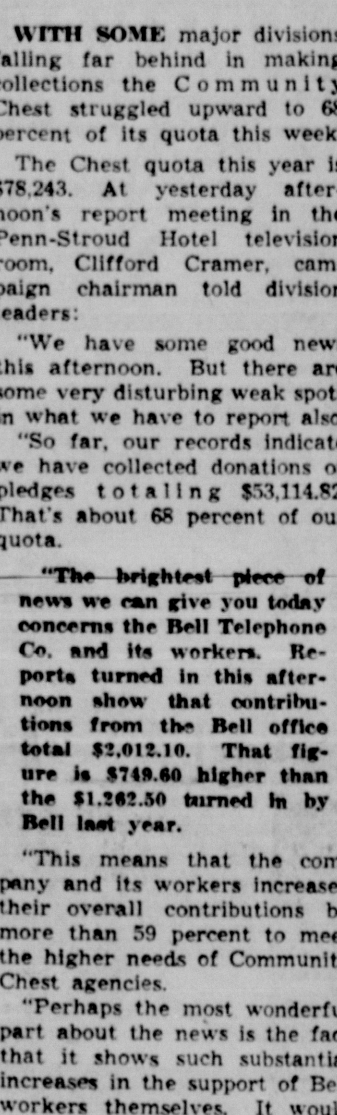

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—George M. Humphrey, the steel mogul who used to fight inflation as secretary of the Treasury, rejected today any price cut for the steel industry.

Now board chairman of National Steel Corp., Humphrey told a Senate hearing that company earnings have fallen off,

Demand New Action

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Senate leaders emerged tonight from a seven-hour Pentagon briefing on U. S. missiles and rocket progress and called for new action to keep the United States in step with Russia in the conquest of space.

World Holds Hope Of Red Report

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—There are hopeful signs Russia will tell an eager, curious world what her Sputnik II and dog launch about mysteries of outer space.

She has agreed to do so under commitments of the International Geophysical Year.

So far as this reporter can establish, Russia hasn't yet told what she has learned from Sputnik the first.

But when it was launched a month ago, a Soviet scientist said it was a test shot and therefore "outside the IGY." The could mean no obligation to tell its findings.

But Russia appears to regard Sputnik the second as an official IGY undertaking.

Announcement

The first official announcement said it was launched "in conformity with the IGY program" to study the upper air and space.

No such phrase was used regarding Sputnik the first.

IGY is a cooperative effort by scientists of 64 nations to discover new knowledge about our earth, sun, air and space. All nations are pledged to report fully and share everything each learns, including discoveries by baby moons.

Russian scientists are reporting IGY findings in other fields,

Salesman Sets Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Jack Zimmerman, a kitchen gadget salesman from Paramus, N. J., today set some sort of record. He was hailed into court for ignoring 103 traffic tickets over the last three years.

Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh prides himself on being tough on what he calls scofflaws. He gave Zimmerman this choice: a $5,150 fine or 206 days in jail.

Zimmerman, 35, chose jail.

Court Refuses To Lift Ban

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The U. S. Court of Appeals today refused to lift a two-week-old injunction against James R. Hoffa taking over presidency of the Teamsters Union.

The appeals court ordered a speedy trial of charges that Hoffa and other Teamsters bosses rigged the union's convention to insure his election.

Steel Mill Operation

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—The nation's steel mills will operate at 78.7 per cent of rated capacity this week, and produce 2,015,000 tons of ingots and steel for casting, the American Iron and Steel Institute said today.

Latest Move Blast At U.N. Policy

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today its withdrawal from all disarmament negotiations being carried out under present U.N. machinery.

The new Soviet policy was disclosed in the United Nations as two Russian satellites — the latest sent into space by an improved power source — whirled around the earth.

Soviet Dep. Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov made the announcement to the U.N.'s 82-nation Political Committee toward the end of three weeks of disarmament debate.

Delegates Shocked

Many delegates were shocked by the sudden Soviet move, which appeared to bring an end to any more disarmament negotiations in the immediate future.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge expressed hope before the committee that the Russians were voicing "just a passing thought, and wiser counsels will prevail."

He added: "We do not believe that any nation wishes to stand for all future time before the world and all recorded history as the nation which broke up humanity's efforts to achieve a disarmament agreement."

Cmdr. Allan Noble, British minister of state for foreign affairs, speaking immediately after Kuznetsov, called it a "most discouraging development. I will have to reflect on it and I may have to speak again."

Canada's Wallace Nesbitt told the committee his government was "shocked and disappointed at this ultimatum from the Soviet Union."

Instruction

Kuznetsov said he had been instructed by his government to make the announcement.

"The Soviet government considers that all attempts to make use of the Disarmament subcommittee for productive work have been entirely exhausted," Kuznetsov declared.

"Under these conditions the Soviet government does not see any sense in further participation in the work of the Disarmament Commission and its subcommittee. Proceeding from this, the Soviet government declares that it will not participate in the U.N. Disarmament Commission and its subcommittee in their present composition."

The Soviet Union has proposed that future U.N. disarmament talks take place in an 82-nation "little U.N. Assembly."

Emergency Landing

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 4 (AP)—An Australian East-West Airlines plane with 27 passengers aboard, including a 4-month-old baby and an 85-year-old woman, crash-landed on a golf course near here today. The airliner plowed down the fairway and wound up half submerged in a lake. No one was injured.

United States, Britain To Offer Voice To Allies

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Informed diplomats said tonight the United States and Britain have agreed to offer their allies a voice in future decisions governing the use of atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Informants said President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan reached that understanding at their Washington meeting last month. It would mean no nuclear weapons would be triggered without the consent of the Western allies.

This idea, the informants continued, has been coupled with a broader program for pooling all the national defense efforts of the allies in weapons research, development and production — with the aim of beating the challenge of Russia's Sputniks.

Proposals

The proposals are presently under informal discussion among the governments of the 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries whose government chiefs meet in Paris in mid-December.

They also are likely to be submitted to the member-nations of the five-nation Baghdad Pact, of which the United States is an associate member, and of the eight-nation Southeast Asian Treaty Organization.

Changes

The Eisenhower-Macmillan plan is pictured as envisaging the creation of:

1. A NATO nuclear weapons stockpile which would be deployed wherever there seems to be a need to deter the possibility of Soviet attack.
2. A NATO central collective force under the supreme allied commander in Europe, U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad. The force would be specially trained in the use of all types of nuclear arms from H-bombs to atomic artillery.
3. A NATO political high command with powers to share the responsibility for all matters relating to the use of nuclear weapons.

In time these projected bodies might be linked with comparable agencies under the Baghdad and SEATO alliances.

The British-American proposals, which could lead to major political and military changes in the structures of these alliances, are subject to approval by member countries.

Good Morning!

"That's the spirit!" declared the medium as the table began to move.

SO VOT'S A SADDLE-ITE?—While that Russian Muttik barks around overhead, we here at the South Stroudsburg Proving Grounds have come up with our own answer. It may never go thousands of miles in space but its a real workable model you must admit. Dog on saddle-ite is Collie (very temperamental, high-strung, prima donna-type dog); was used for experiment to test sensitivity of animals to wide open spaces. Our enterprising scientists (photographers, to you) also found secret source of power (kerosene) for "launching" new missile. It may never replace the intercontinental-type, but the light is just the thing to read by on those long, cold winter nights when you're passing Jupiter or Mars. How are things up there, dog? (Our dog TALKS.) Listen. He just said: "Rough." Night now. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Soviet Union Used New Power For Sputnik II

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Russians announced tonight they used improved new sources of power to fire aloft Sputnik II, the half-ton satellite rocketing a dog through the empty miles of space.

At the same time there appeared to be differences over the life expectancy of the dog, a fluffy little female named Laika.

Soviet planetarium officials suggested she may be parachuted back to earth for study. But Evof. Kiril P. Stanyukovich, a rocket expert, implied she would die in her harness within the satellite.

Stanyukovich told a Moscow radio interviewer rotation of the missile around its axis would not affect the dog "while she is still alive," but that the speed of the rotation will mount steadily, day by day. The listeners were left with the impression the whirling would hasten her end.

Gaiety Of Music, Tragedy Mark Operetta Held At Greene-Dreher-Sterling-School

NEWFOUNDLAND — The gaiety of the world of music in the middle of the 19th century, and the tragedy which changed the life of one of America's great composers provided the theme around which "The Beautiful Dreamer," by the Junior Class of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint School, was woven. The operetta was presented last Friday and Saturday.

As Stephen Foster, Robert Rochfort, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Rochfort, of Sterling, led a well-chosen cast. Songs including "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair," "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Beautiful Dreamer" were brought to life as the story of the songwriter who loved, and lost was unfolded.

Assisting
Able assisting Rochfort was a cast headed by Janice Smith, daughter of Robert Smith, of Angels, as "Jeannie," Martin McLain, who portrayed Dunning Foster, older brother of Stephen who influenced his life to a great extent; Janet Barnes as Stephen's mother; Raymond Gilpin and Rosamunde Cunningham as the parents of Jeannie; Gay Brown, who became Mrs. Stephen Foster after he lost Jeannie; Janet Minda and Joyce Bartleson as friends of the much-envied Mrs. Foster; Kenneth Hollister as the minstrel impresario, E. P. Christy; Sandra Rohrbacher, the "Nellie Bly" entertainer who kept the world singing Foster's melodies; Edward Simon, as Melbourne LaBelle, an actor-singer; Robert Haag and Robert Holdren, music publishers who recognized the genius of Stephen Foster; Diane Streepy as the irrepressible "Mary Belle Day" and James Conley, a waiter and Richard Deskus, a paper boy.

The operetta opened at a dance in Louisville in the 20th century, but shifted almost immediately to Ohio and Kentucky just before the mid-way point of the 19th century. Costumes and settings of the day added to the effectiveness of the story.

Dramatic coach for the production was Leland Cramer. Musical director was John Strupewski, and Wallace Wilder, class sponsor, was general manager and had charge of fighting. Constance Edwards was costume advisor.

The operetta was highlighted by the accompaniment provided by the Greene-Dreher-Sterling dance band with Judith Staph at the piano.

Plans Underway For Palace

TOKYO, Nov. 4 (AP)—Plans are under way to build a new palace with Western-style rooms for Crown Prince Akihito. The Imperial Household Agency said the palace, to cost about $830,000, will be built of steel and concrete on the home site of the late Dowager Empress Sadako, Akihito's grandmother. To occupy 53,000 square feet, it will be 2 1/2 times bigger than his present Togu residence and 3 1/2 times larger than that of his parents.

ARBITRATION AND PRE-TRIAL CONFERENCE

LAWYERS KNOW THESE FACTS
THE PUBLIC SHOULD ALSO KNOW ABOUT:

ARBITRATION

Why the sudden interest of Mr. Mervine in Arbitration?

Judge Davis asked the Monroe County Bar Association to advise him if it considered Arbitration desirable. He received no reply. Mr. Mervine was then and still is President of the Bar Association. He never advocated Arbitration until he wanted to make it a campaign issue.

PRE-TRIAL CONFERENCES

Mr. Mervine promises to speed up the courts by holding pre-trial conferences. Such conferences have been held regularly by Judge Davis since he has been judge. They do aid in speeding trials and promoting settlements. That is why Judge Davis has held them.

Building Of Newly Planned Bridge May Begin In Near Future

Surveying Underway At Planned Site

STATE Rep. Hanford L. Cleveland last night told the Stroudsburg Business Men's Assn. a second bridge spanning Broadhead Creek between Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg may be under construction by the end of this year.

The span would connect Lenox Ave. in East Stroudsburg with Fifth St. in Stroudsburg near the Stroud Township borough line.

It has been approved by both Houses of the State Legislature and by Gov. George M. Leader. The bill providing for the bridge was introduced by Cleveland and Rep. August C. Metz Jr., of Pike County.

Cleveland said that surveying of the bridge site is currently underway. It will be constructed with money from the State Motor License Fund.

He said the office of the Secretary of Highways assured him last week that the bridge will be built.

In answer to a question, Cleveland said its construction will not interfere with the proposed four-lane bridge at the foot of Stroudsburg's Main St. "They will go ahead with the four-lane bridge regardless," he added.

Cleveland said he feels that the bridge, which he called a "pet of mine," will take care of the "pretty near one-third of the traffic" passing between the two boroughs. He said need for another bridge has been felt in East Stroudsburg for several years.

The association voted to endorse the proposed bridge and, presumably, will notify the State Highway Dept. of its action.

Glances At Election

By The Associated Press

Polls open at 7 a. m., close at 8 p. m., eastern Standard Time, in 8,874 voting precincts in the state.

Thousands of county, city, borough and township officials to be elected, including mayors of Pittsburgh, Scranton and 21 of 47 Third Class cities.

Leaders of both parties expect the results to have an important bearing on the 1958 gubernatorial election.

The only state wide vote is on two proposed amendments to the State Constitution. One would authorize civilian absentee voting now limited to members of the armed forces and sick veterans. The other would authorize a 150 million dollar bonus to state veterans of the Korean War.

Local referenda include: Butler, Johnstown and Pottsville votes on setting up a commission to study a possible revision of their Third Class city government; Ellwood City, now a borough, will decide if it should become a Third Class city; York County voters will ballot on setting up a county health unit.

Special elections will be held for Congress in the 13th District (Montgomery County) and for the State House of Representatives in the Second District of Blair County. Both districts are heavily Republican.

Registration: Republican 2,805,370; Democrat, 2,457,832; others 70,754. Total 5,333,956.

Sale of liquor and beer prohibited until 9 p. m., an hour after the polls close.

Company Denies Federal Charges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Procter & Gamble Co., today denied Federal Trade Commission charges that its acquisition of the Clorox Chemical Co. violated anti-trust laws.

The FTC had said the purchase of Clorox by P&G "may have the effect of substantially lessening competition or tending to create a monopoly in the production and sale of household liquid bleaches."

Stroudsburg Businessmen Endorse Report Recommending Parking Lot Construction

By Don Allen

THE Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. last night endorsed an engineer's report recommending establishment of a municipally-operated parking lot on the site of the present Acme and Cypher's Coal Co. lots near Sixth and Main Sts.

It was announced that all Main St. merchants will be asked to sign a petition endorsing the establishment of the lot. It will be presented to Borough Council at its meeting Wednesday.

Charles Marsh, association president, also urged merchants to attend the meeting en masse to throw their support behind the report.

Marsh predicted the lot will be "one of the most profitable ventures the borough ever got into" in urging support of the proposal, which has already been approved by the Stroudsburg Parking Authority.

The meeting, in the Penn-

Stroud Hotel, was attended by approximately 25 representatives of various businesses. Marsh urged them all to attend the council meeting and to bring other merchants with them.

The association also voted to pay $2.29 per tree to merchants who protest hooking up Christmas lights to their electrical outlet. The amount would represent additional electricity used in illuminating the decorations which will be lighted for the first time on Thanksgiving Day.

Burgess Of Bangor Casts 'Big' Vote

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council last night forced Chief Burgess Hayden B. Pritchard to cast the deciding vote in the acceptance of the resignation of David Price, III, as a member of council.

Price recently entered the employ of the Bangor Post Office and, as such, was required to tender his resignation as a member of council under the Hatch Act.

The vote was purely along party lines. Price is a Republican and the five Republican council members voted in opposition to accepting the resignation, while the five Democratic members voted to accept it.

Charge

Pritchard, a Democrat, cast the deciding ballot. According to Walter Warrick, councilman from the Second Ward and a Republican, the Democrats made a "political football" out of Price's resignation.

Warrick said it had been understood prior to the council meeting that no business would be transacted during the meeting. He and other Republican members of council indicated they felt it was a violation of political faith.

Council also awarded the contract to supply coal for borough buildings to Charles Hower and Son and the contract to supply fuel oil to Carl Tolino. Both were residents and conduct their businesses in Washington Township.

The next meeting will be Monday, Nov. 11.

Body Found In Submerged Car

CADIZ, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP)—An automobile that had been under nine feet of water in nearby Lake Clevelander for months was pulled out today and inside it was the body of a man tentatively identified as Robert M. Dolson, 45, of Girard, Ohio, and Franklin, Pa.

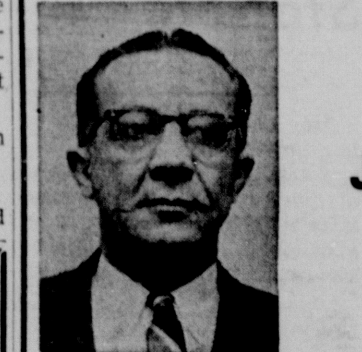

Dolson had been missing since last December, and the submerged car bore 1956 Pennsylvania plates, Harrison County authorities said. The coroner said driver's licenses from the two states listed Dolson's address as 127 Davis St. in Girard and 1215 Chestnut St. in Franklin.

He's Running, But He Doesn't Want Job

Altemose Finds It's Too Late To Bow Out

FORMER COUNTY Commissioner Amzi Altemose, a Republican, found himself a candidate for Chestnuthill Township justice of the peace yesterday.

There were several things wrong with that, Altemose told his former fellow commissioner Adolph Rake. Among them:

Altemose had no intention of running for the office.

He didn't ask for the nomination.

He didn't know he'd ever been named to it.

He didn't want it.

Rake turned the matter over to present county commissioners John R. Lesoline and Willard Quick yesterday morning. They referred it to H. Ray Saunders, chief clerk and then to L. A. Achterman, county solicitor.

Saunders said that Altemose got nominated, apparently, because no one ran for the nomination on the GOP ticket in Chestnuthill and his name was written in by someone.

Achterman said that there was "nothing the county could do" at "this late stage of the game" to remove Altemose's name from the ballot. The solicitor pointed out that voting machine labels and all other election supplies had already been distributed to districts prior to yesterday morning's meeting.

Besides, Achterman said, there was a deadline for requesting that candidate's names be withdrawn from ballots. And it was already "longpast."

Letter From Tallamy Opens Plans

HARRISBURG, Nov. 4 (AP)—

Here is the text of a letter from Bertram D. Tallamy, federal highway administrator, to Lewis M. Stevens, state highways secretary, giving the go-ahead for the Anthracite Expressway:

"Your letter of Oct. 14 advises that the Pennsylvania Department of Highways has reviewed the proposed location for the interstate route between Scranton and Harrisburg and desires to reaffirm its previous desire to proceed with an alignment east of the Susquehanna River, following generally a route passing through Ashland, Mahanoy City and West Hazleton. "This being the case the Department of Highways may now submit requests to us for program approval for the development of preliminary plans showing the precise location, the bypasses of villages and cities involved and the locations of interchanges between the interstate highway and connecting thoroughfares.

"If you desire, we would authorize one public hearing for the entire route if adequate notices are given to all of the communities affected."

Your Check Stubs Tell

"The surest indication of what kind of a person you are is to be found — hold your breath — among the stubs of your old check books."

So said an interesting article we came across the other day. It was written by Halford E. Luccock for the National Council of Churches of Christ in the USA to encourage regular, generous giving. It is timely, we think, because it can be applied to the current Monroe Community Chest drive.

Mr. Luccock does not take credit for the discovery. It was made, he said, by a man who has written many biographies.

This man "noted that it was easy to find out what he had done, but when it came to finding out what kind of a man he really was, the biographer was up a stump."

"Then he discovered that the surest way to get the truth was to look at the stubs of old check books. What a man gives money for—that tells the tale."

"An old check book gossips about us. What does it say about you?"

"If a man's giving is regular and proportionate, the records of his financial transactions says: this man really cares."

"But if his giving is haphazard or inadequate compared to other expenditures, the check book says: this man won't even put God and His work on a level with the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker..."

Who can question the logic in this line of reasoning? There are some people who give none of their earnings to charity or the church. But they are in the minority.

The great majority of our citizens, for example, recognizes the great work being done by the 12 Red Feather agencies which belong to the Community Chest. They must shoulder the responsibility for putting the current campaign for $80,000 over the top. Into which group do you fall?

Are you one of the people who have given their full share to the Chest? Take a look at the stubs in your old check books and you'll find the answer.

George Sokolsky Says...

What We Don't Know

Often we are told that this is One World because time and space have grown together, sort of, and people can understand each other better because they see each other on television and all that kind of thing. The fact is that people do not understand each other at all.

The forms of government, usual in the Western world, have changed so since World War I and their varieties have so increased that it is not surprising that what many take for granted is not true at all. As a matter of fact, little can be taken for granted at a time when there is discussion about making the House of Lords into a United States Senate with female members.

For instance, a reader from Glens Falls, New York writes: "The Post-Star of Oct. 18 tells us that the British Prime Minister is coming next week to discuss some rather important matters with our President. What I cannot understand is why the P.M. has to come to us to discuss when his boss is right here right now, who, it would seem, being the boss, should be able to enlighten the President on all points, on which he needs enlightenment..."

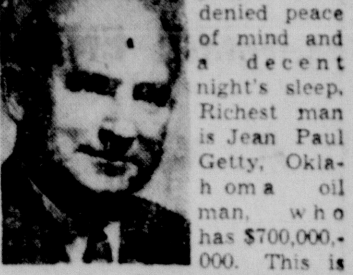

Of course, the Queen is literally not the Prime Minister's boss. His boss is Parliament. True, the Queen appoints him ceremonially; but it would be revolutionary if the Queen did not appoint the choice of the majority in the House of Commons.

What is more the Queen would not be authorized to discuss political questions with the President; that would be the function of the Prime Minister or the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. The Queen would not overstep her bounds. Edward VIII held opinions of his own and therefore he now lives at the Waldorf Astoria in New York.

Let us turn to an area where errors of this sort can be very costly; that is in our misunderstanding of the Soviet Russian system. Soviet Russia has a President, too. His title is Chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet U.S.S.R. But he has none of the constitutional authority of the President of the United States.

The fear of Napoleonism has kept France in political confusion since 1815 and there seems to be no solution in sight. Soviet Russia political forms tend toward Caesarism on matter what efforts are made in contrary directions.

"Democratic Centralism," which they call their form of government, must ultimately lead to dictatorship and the struggle, since Stalin's death, has been over whether a triumvirate, an oligarchy or an individual should be the dictatorship. Caesarism requires an autocrat; Russian Communism requires a dictator.

Frank Fay, speaking of his California hacienda, says, "The people across the street have a place not as big as mine—but it has FOOD IN IT." There is to be a year's celebration of Teddy Roosevelt's birthday. It will be nice to recall a fellow who thought fast, hit hard and never warmed his way out of a situation with "No Comment." Associate Justice Bill Douglas will be interviewed on TV. The decision to do it was five to four. This is National Cat Week. Its purpose is to keep the cat situation from going to the dogs. Since Nakamura and Ono beat the world's top golfers, there is hardly a golf course in America where a player, shown up by a stranger, doesn't grunt, "He must be a Jap." New Satellite song suggested by Mike Hall: I've Grown Accustomed to Your Space. Shirley Temple is in a TV series sponsored by Smith Brothers. One coughing spell on the air and she's out.

United States. He too is a ceremonial official of no political significance.

There is also a Prime Minister in Soviet Russia but he has none of the authority of the British Prime Minister or even the French. He is at the head of the administration but is one of many as to policy. He is subordinate to the Presidium of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. But the head of the Presidium is its Secretary-General or First Secretary.

Marshall Bulganin is the Prime Minister of Soviet Russia but he is subordinate to Nikita Khrushchev. On the other hand, in Yugoslavia, also a Communist country, Tito Broz is President and possesses absolute power.

The system varies in different countries, but in all forms of government, there must be a center of power, a place where authority is clear cut beyond question. In the United States, there is often a confusion due to the nature of our written Constitution which centers authority in the Congress and responsibility in the Executive.

The Supreme Court has extended its prerogatives over both branches of government and there have been periods when the President became more powerful than the Congress and vice versa. The system of checks and balances does not always work out absolutely.

Continental Europe has faced the problem of the abolition of the monarchy in many countries since the French Revolution by either a profusion of political parties or by a single dictatorial party. The really pressing problem in all European countries has been to discover a formula for stability without military dictatorship.

The fear of Napoleonism has kept France in political confusion since 1815 and there seems to be no solution in sight. Soviet Russia political forms tend toward Caesarism on matter what efforts are made in contrary directions.

"Democratic Centralism," which they call their form of government, must ultimately lead to dictatorship and the struggle, since Stalin's death, has been over whether a triumvirate, an oligarchy or an individual should be the dictatorship. Caesarism requires an autocrat; Russian Communism requires a dictator.

Atomic Marshall Plan

Washington, Nov. 4—President Eisenhower is formulating an immense "Atomic Marshall Plan" for presentation at the NATO conference next month.

To be limited to members of this alliance, the purpose of the far-reaching program is to pool their scientific and other resources for the mutual development of nuclear defenses deemed necessary to counter the Soviet bloc's increasingly bellicose advances in this vital field.

Details of the huge multi-billion dollar project are being worked out by officials of the State and Defense Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies. Scientists and other authorities also are being consulted.

The bipartisan leaders of Congress will be invited to the White House for a briefing on the momentous proposal before the President departs for the Paris party.

Tentative date for this congressional conference is December 10.

In its present form, main features of the "Atomic Marshall Plan" are:

A stockpile of tactical nuclear weapons to be established in Europe for the defense of all NATO countries. However, control of this stockpile of bombs, missile warheads, etc., would be solely in the hands of the U. S. and Britain, which will set up this arsenal.

Exchange of military information now barred by the 1954 Atomic Act. This will depend, of course, on Congress' willingness to revise the law to permit that.

Extensive pooling of scientific resources, in personnel, training, equipment, material, etc. Numbers of promising NATO scientists would be afforded the opportunity to attend scientific schools in the U. S., Britain, and other member nations.

Big increase in the next foreign aid budget for this expanded nuclear weapons program. Similarly, the allies are to assume a larger share of the cost of maintaining existing military forces.

Also under consideration for inclusion in the giant project is expansion and modernization of the NATO "early warning" system throughout Europe. This has long been urged by military commanders, including General Alfred Gruenther, shortly before he retired last year.

What It'll Cost—The overall price tag of this vast undertaking is still uncertain.

But two factors already are clear on the question of cost: (1) The program will run into billions over a period of five, and possibly as much as ten, years.

Any Lowell was called in by his publisher to give a little pep talk on her new volume of poetry to the assembled sales staff. It turned out to be a bad idea. In the middle of her talk, Miss Lowell stopped, pointed to the West Coast representative of the firm, and announced to her editor, "This man has a face like a codfish! I won't go on until he stops staring at me."

"All I need is one more dollar," whined a panhandler, "to get my book published." "That's a new approach," admitted his well-dressed prospect. "What's your book called?" "I'm naming it '1000 Easy Ways to Make Money,'" said the panhandler. "So how come you must beg?" asked the prospect. "This way," the panhandler assured him, "is one of the easiest."

So far, the U. S. has spent $400,000,000 for such weapons in the past two years. A tentative estimate for the next fiscal year is $300,000,000. Under the newly-reached agreement, half of that cost will be borne by the other NATO members.

At the Paris meeting the point will be strongly stressed on them that Congress' reaction to the proposed "Atomic Marshall Plan" will be powerfully influenced by the willingness of the NATO allies to contribute a considerable share of the cost.

Current U. S. spending is around $2,300,000,000 a year for military aid to nations throughout the world. That includes a number of others in addition to the NATO allies.

Current U. S. spending is around $2,300,000,000 a year for military aid to nations throughout the world. That includes a number of others in addition to the NATO allies.

So far, the U. S. has spent $400,000,000 for such weapons in the past two years. A tentative estimate for the next fiscal year is $300,000,000. Under the newly-reached agreement, half of that cost will be borne by the other NATO members.

Election Days Major Date

by Jim Riley

Today is election day — one of the most important days in any man's life.

Regardless of your views, you should be at the polls today. You are as important as anyone else in charting the government, local, state or national, for the coming years.

Your party ties don't mean a thing. The important fact is that you cast a vote for the man of your choice today.

Polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. today. Make your visit sometime during this span of hours.

Bob Staph, that musty publicity man from Newfoundland, has passed on a bit of interesting news, especially to people who plan to see "Rusty and Doug" in action at the Portland Fire House. The show is set for Friday, Nov. 22.

These two country music stars have changed their base of operations to "The Carnegie Hall of country music," The Grand Ole Opry, Nashville, Tenn.

Their former affiliation with The World's Original WVA Jambores, Wheeling, W. Va.

This man Staph can really beat the drums.

Don Rayburn, Patterson - Kelley, returned from a two-week business trip on Friday night.

The trip included stops at Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Toronto, New York and Newark.

Don lives at 331 Colbert St., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Marty Baldwin, Stroud Township, is virtually recovered from burns of the arms. The burns resulted from a kitchen accident.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeHaven of Tannersville, are sporting a flashy new car.

Some people really have what it takes.

Bill Gable, Tannersville; Charley Engle, Stroudsburg, and Jake Newhart, Stroudsburg, are currently in the race for the luckiest man in the United States.

They each have a strong claim to the title.

John Shupp is currently on vacation from his post in The Daily Record composing room.

John lives at 340 Braeside Ave., East Stroudsburg.

Birthdays — Judson Diehl, whose 10th birthday came on Halloween entertained a group of boys at a supper party. And Margie Muelian celebrated her sixth birthday at a party on Saturday.

Reindeer — Many outsiders are expected to attend annual dinner of I. O. of Reindeer, Herd No. 12, in the Indian Queen Hotel. Mrs. Grace Dietrich is pres't. Hazel Gage heads dinner committee.

Parade — Despite rain, thousands watched Halloween parade, with over 2,050 in line from the boroughs. Rain did not spoil the dance, and other activities were well attended.

Celebration — Catherine Bachman entertained friends at home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bachman, on her ninth birthday.

20 Years Ago

Anniversary — Descendants of Caleb Cyphers held annual reunion at the home of Earl Cyphers, Shawnee.

D. W. Gap — The Women's Aux. of D. W. Gap Presby. Church met at home of Mrs. Roland H. White. In charge was the pres't, Mrs. Clifford Hauser.

E. S. T. C. — Alfred Mathieson was chosen pres't of Science Club of ESSTC. The club is under advisement of Dr. Elwood Heiss and Steven Roberts.

Party — Miss Betty Kirend was hostess at a Halloween Masquerade Party at Minisink Hills. Dancing and games were enjoyed.

Present Laws Govern News Leaks

Lloyd S. Wright, who served as chairman of the Commission on Government Security, is again in the news. He is again urging his pet project for a law which would subject newspaper reporters and others to heavy fines and imprisonment for disseminating government "secrets."

His proposal is objectionable on many grounds, not least of which is the fact that there is plenty of law on the books already.

Most unauthorized disclosures take place on the initiative of some government official who "leaks" the information. There are still stiff penalties on government officials and others privy to official information who make unauthorized disclosures.

Some of the disclosures are or may be the result

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

This is Election Day and the first item listed on the Calendar for today. In fact it's the only event listed on the calendar that you don't want to miss and still live with your conscience afterward.

I don't know why more people prefer to vote in a Presidential election than in a purely local one. Maybe it's the public ball-hoo. Maybe it's the glamour of the Presidency. Actually, it probably makes more difference in your day-to-day life who is to be the tax collector, school director, assessor or supervisor in your own township than it does who is to be President.

Moreover, it's one election where you can know whom you're voting for, not by his public statement but by his private life. If you don't know him personally, you can easily find out from someone who does.

But really what makes it so exciting to me is that the local election is one place where my vote really counts. A President may be elected without my vote. A state election is usually decided in the thousands. Even a county election it takes a hundred votes more or less to decide. But in a township or borough office, a single vote may decide the winner. Maybe your vote or maybe mine, but they both are decisive.

There's plenty of time to vote. Before breakfast or after supper. If you can't make it any other time.

Time is always a major problem with me—not because I have less time than anybody else, but because I've never learned to budget it properly. In money matters, I have learned to do without the things I can't afford; but time—just invite me to spend time and I say yes, without ever wondering whether I can afford it or not.

Which gets me into some mighty peculiar predicaments. Take tonight: I blithely agreed to do the hula at the Junior Woman's Club meeting, and as readily agreed to help with election returns. Well, it's possible to do both if I leave right after "Grass Shack" and go straight to the office. But won't it seem a little strange for an election reporter to be wearing a grass skirt?

Miss Colleen Jennings Wed In Christ Hamilton Church

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Courtwright are now at home at Stroudsburg RD 1 after a wedding trip to the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania and Niagara Falls. They are occupying an apartment at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Courtwright.

They were married on October 20 at Christ Hamilton Church at a 2 p.m. ceremony performed by Rev. Longhorne of Palmerton. The bride is the former Colleen Ann Jennings, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Gensel of Allentown.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Fred Jennings, wore a long white gown of tulle with long sleeves, an open collar trimmed with lace flowers and seed pearls on each lapel. The bouffant skirt was circled with three tiers of ruffles trimmed with lace flowers and seed pearls, and ended in a chapel train. She wore a crown of simulated pearls to hold her veil and carried a prayer book with a pearl cover with two white orchids with purple lips. The prayer book was a gift from the bride's mother.

Mrs. Adelaide Haney, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of yellow net over satin in a waltz length with a matching stole, and a crown of yellow and white sequins holding a face veil. Her flowers were a cascade of yellow and white shasta pompons.

Members of Woman's Club May Join Trip To Hospital

Members of the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs are invited to join in a trip to the Allentown State Hospital in the interests of Mental Health on November 14, and there are still places available it was announced at the board meeting of the club held yesterday afternoon at the Stroud Community Club. Mrs. Harold Pond is in charge of arrangements for the trip.

At the board meeting with Mrs. Samuel O. Wells, III, presiding, other future activities announced included:

Coming Events

Bald-Headed Women? Not For Long

Santa Monica, Calif. (U) — This may come as quite a surprise to men, but there are as many bald-headed women as men.

Authority for that random statistic is 43-year-old Mrs. Ruth Mary Donnelly, a wigmaker known professionally as M. Ruth.

As far as her trade is concerned, she has three women clients to every man, and the men who come to her establishment to have a "rug" made are, for the most part, under 30 years of age. At that age men are quite sensitive about the loss of hair. Women always are, which explains why nobody sees a bald-headed woman. They do something about it, and quick.

Mrs. Donnelly says she really enjoys her rather unusual occupation.

"Bald heads used to make me nervous," she explains, "but today they present an artistic challenge. Much as an artist gazing at an unpeeled canvas, you see the heads as forms on which to create attractive hair lines."

"It is very rewarding to see your creation restore the confidence of men and women who have lost their hair. It is a rewarding profession, too, financially."

M. Ruth charges from $200 up for a woman's wig, whereas the price for a man's skypiece ranges upward from $250, mainly because there is more detail work.

Many women wear partial wigs, known as crown falls, to cover thinning hair at the top of their heads, and there are many young women whose hair thins out, due perhaps to some deficiency during pregnancy. Disease, worry and hereditary factors contribute to baldness, wigmaker Ruth says.

The Baby's Named!

Philip Harold Portas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Portas of Canadensis and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. David Portas, Newfoundland, was born at Hahnemann Hospital on October 24 at 7:45 p.m., weighing six pounds, three and one-half ounces.

Douglas Wilmer Cramer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cramer, East Stroudsburg, RD 2, announce the birth of a son at 1:10 a.m. on November 3 at home. He weighed nine and a half pounds, and has been named Douglas Wilmer Jr.

Mrs. Cramer is the former Lorraine Booth. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Booth, 279 South Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Cramer, East Stroudsburg RD 2.

Claire Elizabeth Heiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Heiss of Montclair, N. J., announce the birth of a daughter, weighing seven pounds seven ounces on October 25. The baby has been named Claire Elizabeth. They have a son, Stephen, 22 months old.

Mrs. Heiss is the former Claire Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Edwin Hughes of Maple Ave., East Stroudsburg. Paternal grandparents are Mrs. Hilda Heiss, Stroudsburg, and Dr. Elwood Heiss, New Haven, Conn.

Miss Joan Kish, Portland, Is Bride Of John Bock

Portland — Miss Joan Elaine Kish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kish of Portland became the bride of John Bock, son of Andrew Bock and the late Mrs. Bock of Bangor RD 1 on Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Holy Ghost Catholic Church, West Easton.

Rev. Nestor Romanovich performed the ceremony. The church choir presented the musical background for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of imported rose point lace, with fitted bodice, Queen's collar embroidered with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and a bouffant skirt of tiers which fell to a chapel train. She wore a crown of French shell orange blossoms and rhinestones to hold the fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried her grandmother's prayer book with a white orchid and streamers of Stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. Joseph DeFrank of Bangor, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore crimson velvet with a sweetheart neckline, Dior waist, and a floor length skirt of unpressed pleats. Her cascade bouquet was of blue pompons.

The bridesmaids, Miss Elsie Kroboth and Miss Sandra Horton, both of Portland wore velvet in cobalt blue in the same style and carried cascades of crimson pompons.

The flower girl Chris Ann Casciano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Casciano of Bangor, wore a crimson velvet dress in princess style with puff sleeves and a long sash at the waist. She carried a natural reed basket filled with blue pompons.

Joseph D. Frank Jr., nephew of the bridegroom, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeFrank, Bangor, was ring bearer.

Michael Bock, of Bangor served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Louis Mayer and Frank Yakenchek, both of Mount Bethel.

A reception at the Blue Valley Farm Show Building was held in their honor before they left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and the New England States.

The bride was graduated from Stroudsburg High School in the class of 1952 and prior to her marriage was employed in the Accounts receivable department of Julius Keyser and Co., Bangor. The bridegroom, a graduate of Bangor High School in the class of 1943, is engaged in farming with his father.

After November 16 they will reside at the home of the bridegroom, Bangor RD 1.

Tension Often Cause of Trouble In Schoolwork

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M.D.

Stephanie was 6½ when school opened in the fall. She entered the second grade of the local public school according to plan. The class was quite large—33 children. Stephanie was one of the youngest children in the class and one of the smallest. She was a quiet, mousey little girl, anxious to please everyone. She behaved very well in school, was no trouble to the teacher. However, she was a little overwhelmed by this whole business of school. She couldn't read as well as the other children and the work with numbers just confused her.

At the end of the first six weeks of school, the teacher asked Stephanie's mother to come in for a conference. The teacher suggested that the mother devote some time each evening to helping the little girl with her reading. The teacher also wanted to enroll Stephanie in a special speech class—the child, she said, was very hesitant in her speech and often stuttered when she recited in class. The teacher thought this handicap should be nipped in the bud.

Fortunately for Stephanie her mother took her to her doctor for a good physical checkup because she thought the child seemed pale and jumpy.

Too Much Pushing

The only thing the matter with this little girl was that she was being pushed beyond her capacities.

Last year when she was 5½ years old at the beginning of the school year she was put into a small private school where she easily did the first grade work. This school thought she was able to go on into second grade and she might well have been able to handle the academic work had she remained in the private school and in a class of half a dozen children.

Stephanie was a gentle sweet average little girl. In a sheltered environment she could hold her own with her age mates and even with children a little more mature than she was. But in the rough and tumble of a big classroom and with children almost all bigger and older than she, Stephanie was a little lost soul. She couldn't keep up in school work, on the playground, or anywhere.

Almost all children in this predicament will begin to show signs of tension. One child may have violent outbursts of temper, another may wet his bed, a third may begin biting his nails. Stephanie began to stutter. When the reasons for her stuttering were pointed out to Stephanie's mother, she said "Yes, I used to stutter too when I was a child."

Cause Of Stuttering

Stuttering does run in families. Speech just seems to be a little more uneasy in some people than in others. When such people get under tension the weakest link breaks and they show their strain in their speech.

Obviously the worst thing one could do for Stephanie would be to put her in a speech class and give her increased homework. Both these things would merely increase the strain on her, make her more aware than ever that she wasn't living up to the demands made upon her. What Stephanie needed was to go back into the first grade of

What Young People Think

Teen-Agers Maintain They Should Enjoy Right To Vote At 18 Years

By Eugene Gilbert
President of the Gilbert Youth Research Co.

SHOULD the voting age be lowered from 21 to 18? This question has been kicking around in civic and political circles for more than a quarter of a century.

"If we're old enough to fight, we're old enough to vote," was a popular teen-ager refrain during World War II and again in the Korean War.

Two states, Georgia and Kentucky, have quietly turned the slogan into legislative action by amending their state constitutions to permit 18-year-olds to vote. In effect, both states have expanded their electorates by broadening the age group. This could be done because, contrary to popular opinion, the federal constitution sets no age limits on voting. So far, not enough elections have taken place in the two states to determine what influence minor-age voters can have on the outcome of an election.

Teenagers across the country are overwhelmingly—almost unanimously—in favor of having the remaining 46 states join Kentucky and Georgia in passing similar constitutional amendments.

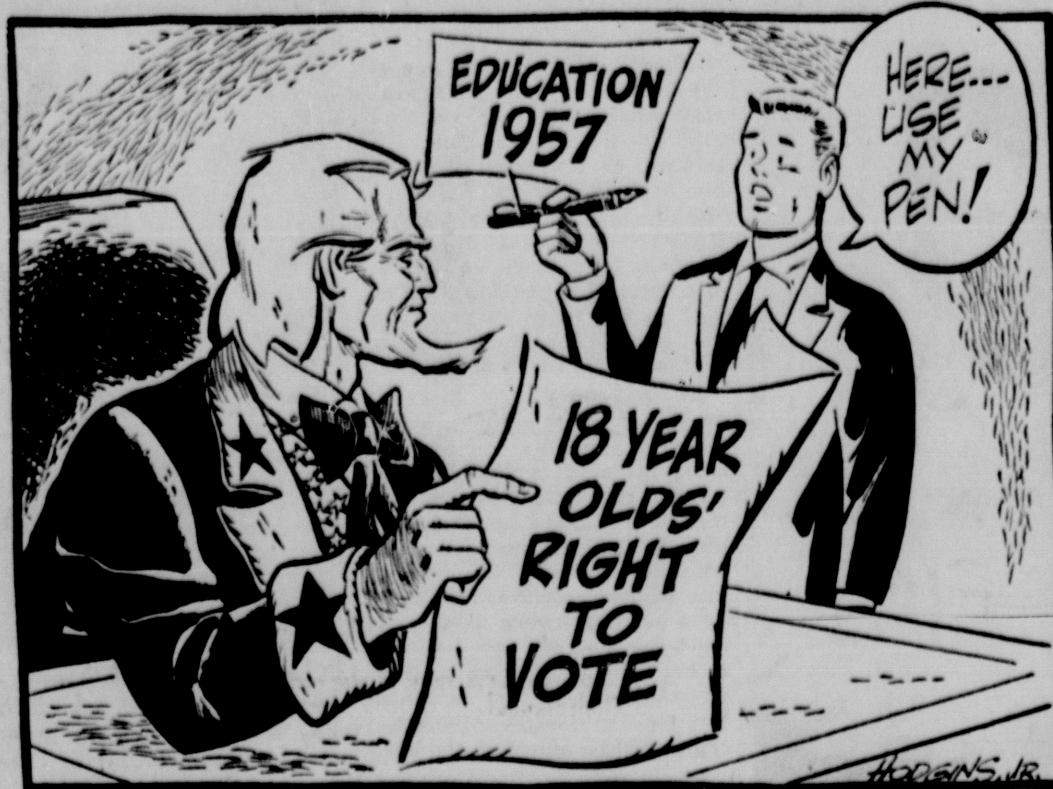

We're Smart Enough

More than 98 per cent of the young people we contacted in a nationwide survey feel that at 18 a citizen is mature enough and educated enough to take an active, voting role in government.

Even though the draft continues, teen-agers no longer base their main argument on the "old enough to fight" slogan. Now their refrain seems to be "If we're smart enough to graduate from high school, then we're smart enough to vote."

In fact, if teen-agers had their way age barriers to voting would be dropped to 18 but literacy requirements would be heightened to include educational prerequisites, something that no state now requires.

The fact that these young people put a high premium on education as a necessary preliminary step by voting may be unrealistic and would have the effect of disenfranchising a considerable segment of the electorate, but at least it demonstrates their belief that voting is a serious business.

Say Diplomas Necessary

Opponents of lowering the voting age to 18 have long argued that teen-agers are too frivolous, too immature, too concerned with less important matters to be allowed a direct voice in government.

Teen-agers contacted in our survey thought they should be permitted to vote at 18 for exactly the opposite reasons. At 18, they argued, a young citizen is closer to his civic book training, has learned a good deal about national and foreign affairs and is more prepared to vote intelligently than someone who has been away from school for a long time.

Almost all of the teen-agers taking part in this survey—99 per cent of the boys and 94 per cent of the girls—were insistent that education be added to the literacy requirements now written into the voting laws of most states.

How much education should a citizen have in order to be allowed to vote?

At least a high school diploma, answered 74 per cent of the boys and girls who favored educational requirements.

At least a grammar school education, answered 18 per cent.

Equal Rights For Girls

Finally, 8 per cent went so far as to insist that a college education be required for voting. In effect, of course, they thereby eliminated themselves from the prospective voting rolls and kicked the voting age back up again to at least 21.

It is interesting to note that in plugging for an 18-year-old voting law, teen-agers would willingly give equal opportunity to both boys and girls. They were unanimous (we didn't count a single adverse vote) in the belief that if the federal constitution is amended to include the 18 to 21-year-old group it should not be done at the expense of the 19th Amendment, which gave the vote to women. In other words, both teen-aged boys and girls should be extended the voting privilege. They do not regard boys as smarter, more mature or more responsible citizens than girls—at least as far as voting goes.

What sort of voters would teen-agers make? Would they be conservative or liberal? Isolationist or internationalist? Democrat or Republican?

As we have already noted, neither Georgia nor Kentucky have held sufficient elections since expanding their voting age group to determine the nature and effect of the teen-aged vote.

Teenagers fairly conservative. But from previous surveys made by our organization some sort of pattern emerges showing how the teen-ager thinks and reacts to national issues.

For instance, in previous studies we learned that the average teen-ager—if there is such a person—is apt to be pro-labor but highly concerned over recent labor scandals. He is overwhelmingly in favor of the United Nations but doesn't know too much about its functions and operation. In the last election he would have voted for Eisenhower and probably is still heavily inclined toward the President, since Eisenhower on more than one occasion has gone on record favoring a lowering of the voting age.

On other issues, he is worried about the age of atomic warfare, concerned about his future job security, irritated by high taxes, cognizant of the problem known as juvenile delinquency (although he refuses to take the rap for it), divided on the issues of universal military training and foreign aid, and in general opposed to socialized medicine, dope peddlers and a teen-aged curfew.

In short, the teen-aged voter sounds hardly less informed or more controversial than any voter at any age.

Special Lights To Be Tested

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—A new system of traffic warning lights, designed to speed the movement of fire engines and reduce accidents, will be tested Friday.

Special lights, controlled by radios in emergency vehicles, will flash red to stop all regular traffic and yellow so that one engine may know that another is approaching the same crossing. In the past, there have been collisions because the drivers could not hear one engine's siren above the noise of their own.

Russia's Satellite Throws Scare Into Stock Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—The stock market weathered an early selling wave based on nervousness over Russia's second earth satellite and closed almost even today.

Gains and losses running from fractions to around 2 points spotted the list of key stocks. Overall, however, the statistics were a bit on the downside.

Aircraft and missile shares were ahead from the very start on renewed expectations of greater government spending to counter the Soviet successes. New York Central and Pennsylvania, spurred by news of their merger studies, also were on the upside early in the day.

Trimming

Losses running as high as 2 points were either trimmed greatly, cancelled or replaced with sizable gains. Among all the listed stocks the score at the end of the day was 583 losers and 349 gainers, 116 new lows for the year and only one new high, Penick & Ford.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, adversely affected by several selling ex-dividend, dipped 40 cents to $135.50. The industrial component was up 40 cents while the rails fell $1.20 and the utilities were off 60 cents.

Volume totaled 2,380,000 shares compared with 2,660,000 Friday. Steels erased almost all their early losses and advanced despite a lower operating rate in the industry. Some oils, metals and chemicals rebounded smartly.

Among the 15 most active stocks 11 rose, 3 fell and one was unchanged.

Bethlehem Steel recovered from a loss of 1/2 on an opening block of 62,000 shares and headed the most-active list, up 3/4 at 39 1/2 on 62,000 shares. Second was North American Aviation, up 1 1/2 at 25 1/2 on 30,300 shares. Third was General Motors, off 1/4 at 38 1/2 on 25,100 shares.

Next came U.S. Steel, up 1/4 at 53 1/2, and Boeing, up 1/4 at 34 1/2.

Pennsylvania Railroad was 9th most active, up 1/2 at 15 1/2 on 21,200 shares. New York Central was ahead 1/4 at 19 1/2 on 13,000 shares.

Barber Loses Legal Fight With Hotel

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—A judge today refused to stop the Hotel Park Sheraton from evicting the operator of a barber shop where gangster Albert Anastasia was shot to death.

The hotel claims the shop served objectionable patrons.

Its operator, Albert Grasso, asked a temporary restraining order, to prevent lease revocation.

State Supreme Court Justice Jacob Markowitz refused but said Grasso could sue the hotel for civil damages if he could prove closing the shop caused a financial loss.

Anastasia was fatally shot as he sat in a chair in the shop Oct. 25.

Lease

Before Grasso's motion was turned down, he maintained in court that his lease still has six years to go, and that if he had to give up the shop he would suffer $500,000 damages.

Thomas C. de Veau, hotel general manager, said the Anastasia killing was a "ghostly incident" that resulted from Grasso's "failure to heed the terms of the lease" for maintaining an orderly shop.

De Veau said Grasso allowed "a mob" to come into the shop for his barbering services several times a week for the past two years, although Anastasia hadn't been a hotel guest for at least four years.

Grasso's lawyer, Harold Lanzner, said that Grasso employed 10 barbers and six manicurists in the shop, and that if he was forced to close it, he would suffer "irreparable harm."

16 Inches Of Snow In Montana

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
SNOW and freezing drizzle provided a wintry covering for large area of the midcontinent yesterday.

A weekend storm left parts of Wyoming wallowing under 16 inches of snow. The storm area spread yesterday dumping snow across the mountains of Nevada and eastward into the Northern Plains.

Lander, Wyo., reported a 16-inch fall. Austin, Nev., had 9 inches while scattered amounts fell from Nebraska into the Dakotas. Freezing drizzle made driving hazardous in parts of Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

Clear skies were confined to the Pacific Northwest, the West Coast and from Virginia and Maryland southward along the Eastern Seaboard.

Patches of fog and drizzle added to the dreary weather in the eastern Rockies and Western Plains. Rain pelted central and northern Texas and Western Arkansas. Showers sprinkled Missouri and parts of the Northeast.

Summer like weather prevailed in southern Florida and southern Texas where afternoon readings pushed into the 80s.

Commission Refuses To Reconsider

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission refused today to reconsider its decision authorizing the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad to acquire joint control of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad.

The commission turned down petitions for reargument and reconsideration of its action. These petitions were filed by the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway, the state of South Dakota, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad and the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

The ICC on May 31 authorized joint control of the Toledo, Peoria and Western by the PRR and the Santa Fe, but held up effectiveness of its order pending disposition of the petitions for reconsideration.

Stroudsburg High Entertains Whitehall Foe At Giffels Field

New Starting Time Set For Makeup Tilt

STROUDSBURG High, returns to the grid wars with only two days rest, today when the Mountaineers entertain Whitehall under the lights at Gordon Giffels Field. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

The contest, a makeup game ordered by Lehigh Valley League officials, will be the second in seven days for John Whitehead's eleven.

Friday the Mountaineers face Slatkington at Giffels in an 8 p.m. arclight duel.

The Mountaineers will be going after their fourth win in six starts and their fourth in Lehigh Valley competition.

Whitehall will enter the contest with a 1-3 record and a 0-2 log against LV teams. However, the Zephyrs of Willie Pitt, in their tussle with Palmyerton, lost by one point, 7-6.

The contest is expected to produce contrasts in offenses—Stroudsburg with its conventional ground game and periodic aerial attack, and Whitehall with its razzle-dazzle overland moves and often-used passing circus.

No Changes Planned
Whitehead plans no changes from his starting lineup which has held sway in five games thus far. At the end positions will be Larry Storms or Ed Hermanns and Dick Cramsey. Manning the tackles will be Bill Bolich and Ed Kassay.

Captain Dick Reiger and Al Edinger will be the guards, and Bob Coolbaugh will open at center.

Stroudsburg's backfield will be headed by either Dick Everitt or Billy Schoonover at quarterback, Doug Wright or Ted Margretta and John Schoonover, halfbacks; and Ron (Super) Phillips, fullback.

Zephyrs Lineup
Whitehall will probably lineup with John Saganowich and Albert Bandie, ends; Edward Folk and John Laub, tackles; Bruce Diehl and Ron Wescoe, guards; and Robert Kelper, center.

The Zephyrs backfield will have Jerome Saganowich, quarterback; John Marshok and William Martin, halfbacks; and George McLaughlin, fullback.

Officials slated to work the contest are Herman Mascall, referee; John Raines, umpire; Robert Daday, head linesman; and Richard Mullen, field judge.

National League Plans For Schedule

CINCINNATI, Nov. 4 (AP)—National League team representatives are slated to meet in Chicago next Wednesday to finish setting up the 1958 baseball season game schedule.

League headquarters announced the meeting today and said one representative from each team will attend.

Final Details
The meeting irons out final details on night games, double-headers and other pertinent matters.

There is added interest in the game scheduled this year with the shift of the Dodgers to Los Angeles and the Giants to San Francisco.

But league officials said the schedule, according to custom, will not be announced until later this year.

Rutgers To Open Drills

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP)—Rutgers University starts basketball practice tomorrow for a 22-game schedule.

Coach Warren Harris will be opening his second season when the Scarlet takes on Muhlenberg here Dec. 7 in the first game.

Sophomore
Three sophomore prospects are members of the varsity football team and won't be available until Nov. 23.

The sophs are Bill Wolff of Highland Park, Bob Simms of Charleston, W. Va., and Dick Penneck of Port Jervis, N. Y.

Grandmother May Appear With Fighter

DENVER, Nov. 4 (AP)—A woman fight manager's battle to get into the ring with her fighter between rounds heightened interest today in the Joey Giardello-Will Greaves middleweight bout tomorrow night.

The non-television fight is for 10 rounds at the Denver Coliseum, starting about 12 midnight, EST. Mrs. Jake Mintz, a sprightly grandmother, who inherited Greaves' contract at the death of her husband, went to the Colorado Athletic Commission offices today to apply for permission to act as a second during the fight. But she got no immediate action.

Verdict
"The commission couldn't do anything today," a spokesman said, "because one member, Dr. John Finesilver, is out of town. He may be back tomorrow, but there may not be any decision until just before the fight."

"The commission rules say plainly a woman cannot act as a second, but I suppose the commission has the power to waive the rule if it thinks it is necessary."

If the commission says no, Mrs. Mintz will have to be content with a seat within hollering distance of Greaves' corner.

The 27-year-old Giardello, No. 3 in his division, is favored to add Greaves to his list of victories, now standing at 78 in 93 engagements. He says he hopes to land a fight with champion Carmen Basilio "before I'm too old."

Greaves, a Canadian fighting out of Pittsburgh, has youth on his side—he's 21 and has had only 22 professional fights. He's won 14.

Navy Leads In Race For Trophy

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Navy's victory over Notre Dame sent the Middles into the lead in the race for the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of Eastern major college football supremacy.

Nine of the 12 coaches, sports writers and sportscasters, who voted in the weekly poll, named Navy. The other three first place ballots went to Army, last week's leader. Based on a point potential of 10, Navy had 9.8 and Army 9.3.

Big Game
Navy knocked Notre Dame from the unbeaten ranks 20-6 while Army romped over Colgate 53-7 with President Eisenhower among the spectators.

Each of the 1-2 teams has two games to play before they meet Nov. 30 at Philadelphia. Navy meets Duke and George Washington while Army faces Utah and Tulane.

Penn State was ranked third, followed by Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Dartmouth. Others in the first 10 were Boston College, Princeton, Yale and Boston University.

287th Game
His Waterloo
MIDDLETOWN, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP)—A 35-year-old insurance agent, struggling to stay awake, reached what he called a new national record of 286 non-stop bowling games today before his stamina gave out.

Tom Baird Jr., was five frames in to his 287th game when he paused for a drowsy five-minute break. He could not continue.

65 Hours
The husky bowler went 65 hours in the self-imposed test, starting late Friday night.

Baird started off at a 150 average per game, and early in the bowliathon rolled his best game—246. Later he switched to a lighter ball, and his overall average slipped to 141.

His refreshments were soft drinks and broth, and he changed shirts and underwear often.

Redlegs Drop Veteran Coach
NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—The unconditional release of Frank McCormick as a coach of the Cincinnati Redlegs, was announced today from the office of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick.

In Cincinnati, John Mordough, traveling secretary for the Redlegs, said McCormick will be given another job in the organization. He said McCormick asked to be released from coaching duties because of the condition of his back.

TRESPASSERS
will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Eastburg To Oppose Port Jervis Gridders

EAST STROUDSBURG and Port Jervis high schools yesterday scheduled a football game for Saturday night.

The game will be played at East Stroudsburg's Memorial Stadium. It will begin at 7:30 p.m., according to Jack Kist, coach of the host team.

Kist said that scheduling of the game was made to the mutual satisfaction of both schools. Each was looking for a game to help make up for losses in its schedule.

East Stroudsburg was forced to cancel out of its scheduled game with Parkland due to the flu epidemic.

Port Jervis lost two scheduled games for the same reason.

Pennsylvania Football Star, By Way Of Kentucky, Shows Strength In Role Of Tackle

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 4 (AP)—Lou Michaels, Kentucky's strongboy tackle, burst across the line and grappled with a pair of would-be blockers striving to clear a path for their ball carrier.

Lou didn't get to the runner. But, his hand-to-hand combat in maneuvering the interference left the carrier no place to go and doubtless contributed to a fumble which Kentucky recovered.

Michaels' agility and power in this tactic point up the value of the 235-pound All-America candidate from Swoyersville, Pa.

Praise
"Lou is as good a tackle as you can find in college football," said Coach Blanton Collier. "He is good enough to play on anybody's team."

Collier doesn't give his strong boy a free hand in picking his defensive post but under varying circumstances Michaels will operate from either left or right tackle and at times as a line backer.

"Michaels has done a fine job for us," continued Collier. "He's handled tremendously by the fact we've had to play a lot of men."

"Trying to compensate for some of their errors, Michaels sometimes gets himself into difficulties. But, the movies show it's a case where he's usually trying to cover up for somebody else."

"He plays by ear at times in an effort to help out," the coach added.

A southpaw, Michaels is one of Dixie's better punters with a 41.6 average on 29 kicks, has booted seven extra points without a miss this season and handles the kick-offs.

Collier took issue with press dispatches that spoke of Louisiana State's Billy Cannon twice going across the position guarded by Michaels for touchdowns.

"The story can't be factual," said Collier. "LSU scored three touchdowns. One was on an intercepted fumble and one was on an end run. I challenge anyone to act as bargaining agent for league players."

Third Smash
"The third one went but two yards. The area covered by Michaels was covered rather well. The person in fault wasn't Michaels."

The coach explained that in the latter situation, he could understand such a statement. He added that while Michaels carried out his assignment in the goal line defense to crash in, the play went over a spot previously vacated by the big tackle.

Collier said shortly after the incident "I'm not trying to take anything away from Cannon. He's a star in his own right, a great one."

But, for Michaels, he added, "it's a little far fetched to say they ran over him."

Coach In Good Standing

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 (AP)—Soft-spoken Rah Richards today was retained as head football coach of the Chicago Cardinals for as long as he wishes to remain with the club.

The announcement was made by Richards himself in an address to the Chicago American Quarterback Club and it brought a round of applause.

It ended persistent rumors that Richards was on the way out after the Cards won only two of their first six games in the National Football League.

Armstrong Triumphs
NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP)—Gene "Ace" Armstrong, a fancy stepping youngster from Elizabeth, N. J., won his 13th bout without a defeat when he outpointed Randy Sandy of New York in the feature 10 at St. Nicholas Arena tonight. Armstrong weighed 154, Sandy 156.

Ladies Bowl Today
EAST STROUDSBURG Ladies' League bowlers will clash at Harmon's Recreation today at 6:45 p.m. Schedule follows:
Alleys one and two—Welch's Buick vs. Town Tavern.
Alleys three and four—Square Bar vs. Eagles.
Alleys five and six—Zacher's vs. Russ' Restaurant.

Hamia Gains Ring Nod Over Omodei

PARIS, Nov. 4 (AP)—Cherif Hamia, top-ranking featherweight contender from France, decisively outpointed Italian lightweight Anibal Omodei in a 10-round bout at the Palais Des Sports tonight.

Seraphin Ferrer, 144½, of France, outpointed Italy's Emilio Marconi, 147, in another 10-round scrap. Marconi is the European welterweight champion but his title was not at stake.

Elimination Bout
Europeans considered it an elimination bout in the tournament to determine a successor to Carmen Basilio. Basilio yielded the welterweight crown when he won the middleweight title from Ray Robinson.

Neither Ferrer nor Marconi was included in the six-man tournament set up by the World Boxing Committee.

The baby-faced, Algerian-born Hamia scored repeatedly with stinging jabs, which drew blood from the nose, and fast left-right combinations to the head.

There were no knockdowns.

Astolat Dogs Win Prizes In Shows

MRS. CONSTANCE Hubbard, owner of Astolat Kennels, Effort, added to her list of winnings in two recent dog shows.

Magnet's Royalty of Astolat was first in the open class, gained winners and best of winners at the Union County Kennel Club Show, Elizabeth, N.J., on Sunday.

Opposite Sex
Astolat Penelope was first in the open class for females, captured winners and best opposite sex at the same show. Each won two points toward championship standing.

The same two dogs won exactly the same honors at the Bronx County Show last week.

Viewing Screens

LUCILLE BALL and DESI ARNAZ will present the first show of their new series of five musical comedy programs Wednesday night at 9 on CBS. . . . England's Diana Dors will tell Mike Wallace why she objects to being compared with Marilyn Monroe Saturday night at 10. . . . Veteran stage and screen star Claude Rains will play the conniving mayor in NBC's "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" Nov. 26, in which he will even do a bit of song and dance.

College To Present Play Of Drama

WITH the production of "Come Back, Little Sheba," Alpha Psi Omega, Drama Honorary at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will be bringing the first dramatic play to the campus in more than two years.

Mask and Zany, "Junior" drama club, will assist in bringing William Inge's hit play to the college auditorium, Nov. 21 and 22.

About two years before that, a mystery-melodrama entitled "The Visitor" saw production. And still further back, there were "Lady Precious Stream" and Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer."

The policy in the past has been to present comedy about three out of four times. Many of the comedies, though, have been good plays, containing drama in their plots or subplots. Two of these were "Goodbye, My Fancy" and "Philadelphia Story."

Drama Director
Ralph Smith, Drama Director, stated that the proportion of comedies was to satisfy more customers, since that is what most seem to prefer. "If more than two plays a year were given, though, more varied plays would be included," Smith said.

"It should be added at this time, though, that the comedy, even the very light comedies have their rewards as well. In the realm of humor, delivery of lines, timing of action and lines, the comedy does a great deal for the actor. In addition, rehearsals in a good comedy are often more enjoyable," Smith remarked.

George Appleby, the pathetic henpecked husband who, in the opinion of his wife, never seems to do anything right, is portrayed again by Red Skelton at 9:30 p.m. on ch. 2 and 10, with Peter Lorre as Red's special guest. . . . Cadets and tactical officers in summer training fight a forest fire which threatens lives and an ammunition dump in "Backfire" on the "West Point" series at 10 p.m. on ch. 6 and 7.

Teen-Agers Fly Without Any Lessons

LANCASTER, Nov. 4 (AP)—A high school aviation bug and his young flying companion were in county jail today after admitting they stole an airplane and made a "fantastic" 200 mile flight over eastern Pennsylvania travelling part of the time on instruments at 14,000 feet.

Officials at the airport in nearby Litzitz said the pilot, Thomas Yoder, 15, of Lancaster, had been a steady visitor at the field since he was about 10 years old but never had a flying lesson and described the flight as "fantastic." Operation of the stolen plane, a (Beechcraft Bonanza) single engine four seater, requires the ability of a near professional pilot, they said.

Return Flight
Yoder and his companion, LeRoy Lintner, 15, also of Lancaster, managed to get the plane back to the field safely Saturday night but failed to return it to the hangar. A pilot who arrived some time later Sunday became suspicious and suggested that police check on the Yoder boy.

In his signed statement, young Yoder said he and Lintner rolled the plane, property of the Animal Trap Co., out of the hangar and took off late Saturday night. He said they planned to fly to New York but weather conditions, which they received over the radio from Harrisburg, were unfavorable and that they flew instead to Allentown, circled the city, and then returned to Litzitz some 2 1/2 hours later. He said they made two poor approaches before setting the plane back down on the runway. Part of the flight, he said, was made on instruments, when they ascended above the clouds to about 14,000 feet.

Airport officials said the plane was not damaged except that the fuel mixture had been too rich because Yoder had not thinned it for the higher altitude flying.

The boys said they stole an automobile after the flight and, after picking up a third teenager, drove to Washington Sunday for a visit to the Smithsonian Institution's aviation exhibit.

Boyertown Boy Charged With Murder

READING, Nov. 4 (AP)—A youth was charged with murder today in the fatal shooting of a state trooper after he forced three other policemen to handcuff themselves to trees.

Trooper Philip Melley, 43, a bachelor, eligible to retire next month, was shot in the forehead in a wooded area near where he attempted to disarm William C. Henderson, 16, of Boyertown.

Police said Henderson climaxed an argument with his parents over whether he should go squirrel hunting by threatening to shoot his father with a shotgun.

Then the boy went into the woods surrounding his home. He had the gun and a dozen shells in his pocket. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Henderson, called Douglas Twp. Police Chief Irvin DeHaven.

Call Police
DeHaven found Henderson in the woods, but was unable to coax the boy into handing over the gun. He called Reading state police barracks and Troopers John A. Devine, Thomas McCann, and Melley were dispatched.

Devine, McCann and DeHaven entered the woods to search for Henderson, but each was disarmed by the youth upon discovering him. At gun point he forced each to handcuff himself to a tree.

When Melley appeared, Henderson told him to stop or he would shoot one of the helpless policemen. But Melley kept walking toward him, quietly trying to talk the youth into dropping the shotgun.

Melley lunged, police said, and Henderson fired point blank into his forehead. The trooper fell dead.

Police said the youth dropped the gun and started to run, but returned immediately, set one of the policemen free and gave himself up.

Henderson was sent to Berks County Prison after his arraignment before Magistrate Charles E. Lease.

Travel In Highways Hits Safety Mark

DETROIT, Nov. 4 (AP)—The odds on living through a highway journey are more than twice as good as they were 20 years ago, the Automotive Safety Foundation said today.

The accident fatality rate in 1937 was 14.7 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, said Gen. Levin H. Campbell Jr., Reg. chairman of the foundation's board of trustees.

Today the accident fatality rate is six deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, a drop of more than 60 per cent, he said.

Celebration
The foundation's 20th anniversary celebration opens here Thursday.

The foundation was established by the automotive industry to work on problems of travel safety and is financed by the automotive industry and related industries.

TV On Satellite Seen By Expert
BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP)—One of wartime Germany's top rocket experts said today the Soviet Union can launch a television-bearing satellite capable of transmitting to Russia pictures of potential targets all around the globe.

Dr. Walter Dornberger, now a consultant to the Bell Aircraft Corp., said he attached tremendous military significance to the launching of the second Soviet satellite. As a Nazi major-general, Dornberger commanded the German rocket research center at Peenemunde.

Conference Plans
TUNIS, Nov. 4 (AP)—The weekly L'Action, usually well informed, reports President Habib Bourguiba plans a conference soon with Morocco's King Mohammed V to establish a common policy on the Algerian question. Both nations, which flank Algeria, openly support the cause of the anti-Frehe rebels.

Atlantic Coast Oil Rigs Forecast
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP)—A geologist speculated today that within 10 to 20 years the Atlantic Seaboard may see the erection of offshore oil rigs similar to those along the Pacific and Gulf Coasts.

Meredith E. Johnson said the idea still needs much investigation but added definite indications of the presence of oil have already been found along the

Businessman Admits To Two Murders

WARWICK, Va., Nov. 4 (AP)—A conscience-stricken businessman who says he wants "to meet God in peace" walked into police headquarters here last night to give himself up for two killings he says he committed in Allegheny County, Pa., 31 years ago.

Robert Lee Payton, 53, a Negro, known since 1926 as Robert Lawrence, told Warwick police he shot and killed a man and woman in an argument over a dog in March, 1926, and has been a fugitive ever since.

Authorities

Payton, who operates a flooring firm here with his two sons, said he committed the crimes in self defense.

He said he had been living with his common law wife, Alice Wolford, for three years prior to the killing and then had separated from her. Payton said she took a small dog with her when she left. He said he went to her friend's house with the intention of getting "the dog back and got into an argument over the animal."

Hamilton School Issue Among Top Items Of Interest At Polls

(This is the second in a series of two articles on the problem that Hamilton Township has included in Stroud Union School District. Voters in Stroud Township, Delaware Water Gap and Hamilton will vote Yes or No on the issue today at the polls.)

By Leonard Randolph
BRINGING Hamilton Township into Stroud Union School District would also bring added benefits to the education system.

The addition will not change the physical system as it now operates. Hamilton grade school children will still attend classes in the township building near Solata.

And secondary students from

Hamilton will still attend classes in the junior-senior high school building in Stroudsburg. For years Hamilton's grades nine through 12 have attended the Stroudsburg school. This year, for the first time, Hamilton seventh and eighth graders are also attending the school in the borough.

Fairly Static
With school population figures remaining fairly static, no further additions to the high school system plant should be necessary. A new double-wing construction program at the present high school is now near completion.

Hamilton itself will, however, need some kind of building program in the next few years. In the view of school administrators, this seems inevitable—almost as certain as the eventual creation of a full-sized Union district including the township. But Hamilton will bring with it into the Union district another 15 teaching units. These will account for an additional $8,000 each year in supplemental appropriations from the State.

This is due to the State's complex reimbursement structure which encourages the creation of larger school districts. According to Earl F. Groner and other Stroud Union school administrators, that appropriation alone would be "more than enough to cover the rental (payment) on a six or seven-room addition" to the Hamilton building.

In addition to this extra payment the Union district will also gain an estimated $17,000 yearly in tax income which will be made available from Hamilton's existing sources. That amount would more than compensate for additions to the teaching staff in the Union.

More Important
More important than any of this, however, in the eyes of educators is the long list of overall advantages to be gained through creation of one education system for all the children who are to be eventual graduates.

Although some people appear to hold from the theory of centralization in schools, the State Department of Public Instruction is increasingly emphatic in its endorsement of larger school systems under central administration. From an administrative standpoint the approval of State and local officials is easily understood.

For one thing, schools must be operated as economically as possible. But they must also provide the wide range of special services and expanded instruction expected of modern education.

To accomplish these two ends simultaneously it is necessary to have both quantity and quality. The larger system allows schools to offer below-high school level courses which it might not otherwise be able to afford.

Chief effect in this area is the provision of kindergarten for younger children, specialized training in art, music and physical education. Most parents in the present Stroud Union District would respond with high praise for the institution of kindergarten as part of the educational system. The same rule holds true for the "special skills" subjects listed above.

In considering education for all the children in the area now served by Stroud Union Schools (and that already includes Hamilton, on a tuition basis) school officials hold to the view that incorporation of the township as a formal part of Union will make possible a standardized set of policies.

Many of these overall policies have to do with the management of the school system itself. Included in these are the general saving of time, money and increasing authority of a standard attendance policy. Stroud Union now maintains one general system for insuring attendance in school. To do so it employs one truancy officer.

Uniform Purchases
Under union it becomes possible to make uniform purchases, resulting in general savings in the field of supplies and equipment. Stroud Union has helped to offset rising costs in these areas through larger, uniform purchases during the past two years. Otherwise the cost of supplies would have risen to a much more marked degree than the 19 percent noted in yesterday's article.

Through establishment of one administration for the school system, the Union is able to avoid duplication of effort. With clerical work, payrolls and supervision concentrated under one office it becomes more nearly possible for administrators to work out and maintain an educational philosophy with the broader view of the group of educated young men and women who are equipped to face life, take jobs or enter college on graduation.

This is made possible, primarily, through creation of the same program of instruction and equal opportunity for all children in the area. With the enlarged education system the early grades and secondary school are no longer in conflict with each other where courses offered, texts and methods of instruction are concerned.

Too many times in the past teachers have found it necessary to re-trace their instructional steps with students who come to high school classes unprepared for the approach to study needed on the secondary level. The result has often been a kind of split-level educational program in which students with adequate background or training in the advanced subject are in competition with others who have little or no groundwork.

Opportunity
No one pretends that standardization of study techniques or textbooks will turn every student into a gifted one or a genius. But giving each child the same tools with which to work at least offers like opportunity for mental and emotional development.

This is the major by-product of a combined school district. The encouragement of Union Schools by the State in terms of money is another main consideration. For Hamilton Township and the Stroud Union District the question to be decided today is exactly the same as the one Stroudsburg, Stroud Township and Delaware Water Gap voters decided favorably two years ago.

Soviet Union Plays Tune On Nerves

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

THE Soviet Union, being the only nation which knows whether new weapons are likely to be used in war during that position to play on the nerves of other people with impunity.

It's even gotten to the point where Nikita Khrushchev, consistently acquiring more and more power, can cause the jittery just by saying he doesn't think there is going to be a war. He has the power to reverse himself, such power as is not held by any democratic government.

This he has done after stirring up a tempest in the Middle East just to emphasize Russian interests there. None of the required factors for a war were present there. But there is always a danger, in such a situation as Russia created between Syria and Turkey, that it will get out of hand at some point.

Connection
There was undoubtedly some connection between the Turkish-Syrian furor and Marshal Zhukov's ouster, but it may be a long time before we know just what. If Khrushchev is willing to create such an international situation even partly to cover a struggle for power at home, he is indeed becoming a dangerous man.

Another dangerous psychological factor lies in the simultaneous emergence of Khrushchev along with Soviet scientific and military power. Often in history the man, the weapons and the political situation have coincided with what seemed like inevitability.

Throughout all time man has fixed his eyes upon the stars, believing that he would eventually find new worlds among them, or at least some new clues to his own existence.

Yet now, when man sees their visitation as a practical possibility, he drags his feet in the mud of conflict, thinking more of what he can destroy, or of how to defend himself, than of what he can learn.

The American State Department is inclined to look on changes in Soviet political leaders as indicating "stresses and strains" within the Union.

The scurrying of scientists, military and administrative leaders in Washington during the last few weeks indicate some "stresses and strains" over here, too.

When Secretary Dulles said nearly two years ago that Russian post-Stalin policies were a failure he might better have said that they were not successful. Their new weapon program certainly shows signs of success. The West powers can no longer manipulate things in the Middle East without considering Russia's position there.

So far, the chief hope for peace lies in the deterrent value of the new weapons which themselves cause so much fear. But the world will not live for long, no matter how frightful the alternative, in a peace composed only of constant fear.

It is this on which Russia seeks to play. If war is unthinkable, then peace must be had by other means.

The Russians want to make it co-existence with slavery. The problem of the free world is to convince Russia — not India, or Afghanistan, or Syria, but Russia — that the true goal is economic cooperation amid freedom for all.

Soldier Faces Charge Of Manslaughter

PRINCESS ANNE, Va., Nov. 4 (AP)—A Ft. Story soldier today was ordered held for Princess Anne County Circuit Court grand jury action on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in the "Russian roulette" death of another soldier.

"Russian roulette" is played by inserting one cartridge in a pistol, spinning the chamber and pulling the trigger.

The defendant is Darwin Lee Brock, 21, of Lake City, Iowa. He was arrested on a warrant charging he caused the death of Norman J. Harshbarger, 21, of Wyoma, Pa., "by his reckless and criminal negligence."

The shooting occurred in Brock's trailer home near Virginia Beach Oct. 20. Police said Brock told them Harshbarger shot himself in the face with a .38 caliber pistol Brock had handed him.

It is a question of equally good education for the greatest number of children.

If admission of Hamilton is approved in today's balloting, the newer, enlarged Stroud Union District will have some new problems. Administrative details, setting up of uniform study courses and standard texts will take patience and time.

No intelligent school officer, teacher or parent would pretend that the mere formation of a larger district is a cure-all, and there is no pain-killer to dole out for the realities of running schools today. In education there are no bromides or tranquilizers. Parents get what they want for their children—but the pipe must be paid.

Asian Authority Calls For Study By United States

By Leonard Randolph
AMERICA'S contributions to a free Asia are "much more profound" than the materials and machinery we have shipped them an expert on Far Eastern affairs told Dutch Treat Club last night. And those contributions are important in the heritage of the country itself, he said.

Speaking before the Club in the ballroom of the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Wei-Kuo Lee, called by the New York Times one of the 10 foremost Chinese in America, said: "I hope American policy makers and field workers will try to understand the people of other nations better than heretofore. I have seen the way American agents have done their jobs. They don't care much about understanding these people. They have a blueprint.

"They move in and if they think beefsteak is good for the Burmese they insist they take it. They disapprove of chopsticks or eating with the fingers — knives and forks are much better. It is this subjective thinking, this imposing of American tastes upon others and a lack of interest in the cultural background of the foreign nation which is damaging U.S. relations overseas.

"The U.S. had better emphasize not so much the material side of life, but the spiritual; spend more money developing cultural enterprises instead of building factories." (Dr. Lee cited the American University in Beirut, Lebanon, as a prime example because its graduates are letting "American culture radiate into many nations.")

"American agents tend to evaluate culture in terms of automobiles and washing machines. But these are not our most important contributions. They are important, yes. But the Russians can make these, too. America's contributions are much more profound than this.

"For the Chinese and the Indians the story of America as a free democracy, the legend of this nation's revolt against the yoke of tyranny are more important. We must show them the existence of opposition within our country. (Dr. Lee is now an American citizen). For wherever you see that in a democracy there is no opposition, then you know that democracy is a fake. We must tell the Asiatic people about this freedom (which) is so much more precious than an automobile.

"I may have all the material in the world, but if I don't have this cultural heritage, I am an animal. America must help give human dignity — a commonplace in this country — to the Asian world because Asians cannot build a great country of their own on the basis of technological knowledge.

"In helping Asian nations to help themselves, diplomats should aim a little higher than usual, higher than themselves. Confucius once said: 'When a small country serves a big country, she does so out of fear of God. When a big country serves a small country, she does so out of love of God.'

"India or the other Asian nations cannot do this but the United States can. It can have that infinite compassion for the 'bubbling masses' because it should know it is doing something for mankind. It is true that not everyone is grateful, but most people are grateful. And if they are not now, they will be.

"But for America there is one thing. If you don't forget your Self and do everything for God, you will lose everything you have. Do all that you can for mankind and convince them that you are the Messiah — without the air of the Messiah. Perform the role assigned to you by the Almighty and one day the people will fall down and worship you. Not because they are afraid of you, but because they love you," Dr. Lee said.

He affirmed a faith in the firmness of friendship between Asian nations and America by citing to the support given the U.S. at the Bandung conference in April, 1955. It was at that conference, he noted, that the U.S. made no attempt to force support in advance from any of the new nations. And it was here that Ceylon's minister strongly condemned international communism and praised highly the actions of the U.S. in the East.

America faces a challenge to its world leadership in the Far East, he said, because Soviet Russia has made it easier for small nations to carry on free trade or barter. Some nations — such as Burma — have rapidly become disillusioned with the Russian "deals," he said. And, as a result, Burma today is breaking away from its initial socialist system and inviting free enterprise and private financing to take over some business and agriculture.

Despite its strong efforts, he said, Russia is not gaining friends in the Far East. "If American policies are formed better and with greater magnanimity in the encouragement of the free human spirit, there is every reason to trust that in the future, the U.S. will not only hold its present friends and allies but will gain new ones," he said.

Recent Russian scientific advances have strengthened "neutrality" in Asian nations, Dr. Lee said. But there is a marked difference between the reaction to Soviet technological triumphs (such as the earth satellites) and the gains made by the U.S. (such as the atomic bomb). "The Soviet announcements inspire fear and horror and raise the spectre of what may happen," he said. "But Asians accept American advances without fear."

During a question and answer period following his formal talk, Dr. Lee was asked whether he felt the United Nations should admit Red China. He replied:

"I think that should be a matter for the majority to decide. It is not very wise for the United States to try to obstruct it because the United States should try to avoid posing as the big boss. I, personally, don't feel that Red China should be admitted unless she mends her ways — setting free the prisoners she still holds from the Korean war.

"And, if the United States does not want to recognize Red China as a nation she should not do so. But she should not try to keep the United Nations from admitting Red China as a member nation if the majority of nations in the U.N. wish to do so," he said.

Man Ready To Make Trip To Moon

OMAHA, Nov. 4 (AP)—Col. John P. Stapp, who has simulated in a laboratory most of the physical and mental hazards of space flight, acknowledged today that physically man is about ready to make a trip to the moon.

Psychologically, however, only someone who has undergone rigorous training and is properly motivated would make it, the Air Force physician and biophysicist added.

The Russians have a capability for sending a human up in a satellite now, he said. "It is my opinion they can do it in the very near future," he added.

Readiness
As for this nation's readiness to launch humans into space, "I have my tools and am ready to go when they tell me," Col. Stapp is chief of the Aero-Medical Laboratory of the Air Force Air Research and Development Command at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M.

He is here for the Omaha-Midwest Clinical Society's annual assembly. Today he told of rocket sled experiments to test human tolerance to mechanical forces. Stapp himself sped 632 m.p.h. in one of the sudden-stop experiments.

Asked about reports that four bears were being shipped from Catskill, N.Y., to Holloman, Stapp declined comment. He said that chimpanzees and hogs had been used in the sled tests. The hogs were not considered successful as test animals.

625 X-Rays Given Free At State Teachers College

A MOBILE x-ray unit yesterday gave free chest x-rays to 625 East Stroudsburg State Teachers College students and foodhandlers.

Under State law freshmen, seniors and foodhandlers at Teachers Colleges are required to have chest x-rays.

Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive secretary of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society, announced the total last night.

Students who are required to get x-rays and did not show up for free ones will have to have them taken and pay for them at the local hospital, Mrs. Fleming said.

The Society is cooperating with the college in the mass chest x-ray project for the first time this year.

200 Years In Four Weeks

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 4 —The Russian satellites have compressed 200 years of astronomy into the last four weeks, Dr. Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical cal Laboratory said tonight. Dr. Whipple said that never in the history of astronomy have the scientists been able to study a satellite when it traveled as fast as the Russian earth moons.

Surveys Begin On Location Of Highway

HARRISBURG, Nov. 4 (AP)—J. L. Stinson, division engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, said today surveys have started for locating a north-south interstate highway east-north west-of the Susquehanna River.

That was his answer to the question of whether a federal go-ahead was given to the Anthracite Expressway, a four-lane 200-mile high-speed road that will run between Hagerstown, Md., and Binghamton, N. Y.

Lewis M. Stevens, state highways secretary, announced last Friday that approval came from Bertram L. Tallamy, federal highway administrator, in a letter to him.

A Tallamy aide said at Washington that approval can only come after public hearings were held "prior to the preparation of detailed plans."

Hearings

Both Stevens and Tallamy interpreted this to mean that public hearing would be held on the precise location of the Anthracite Expressway such as bypassing particular communities or fixing interchanges.

It did not mean, they said in separate interviews, taking testimony on choosing between two general locations such as the alternative between a route through the anthracite region or one along U. S. Route 11 on the west side of the Susquehanna River.

Paul R. Eyerly, Bloomsburg publisher and chairman of the Original Route 11 Assn., disagreed with this interpretation. He said Tallamy told a delegation from the association last month that a public hearing would be held before either route was chosen.

Eyerly's group met with representatives of the Susquehanna Economic Development Corp. during the day on the question of whether to go into the courts on the public hearing issue.

At Pottsville, Daniel A. Morris, president of the Greater Pottsville Industrial Development Corp., praised the action giving the go-ahead to the Anthracite Expressway survey.

"In the final analysis," he said, "the choice of the route was made by the department because for many reasons it was the sensible and logical one to make but as in all such matters many pressures were brought to bear to have it located elsewhere."

It's Tough To Stake Claim For Moon Land

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—They laughed 13 years ago when R. L. Farnsworth wrote the Interior Department, saying he wanted to stake out a homestead on the moon and how did he go about it?

But today, 13 years later, two Sputniks later, November, 1944, begins to look like one of those days that mankind passes by lightly at the time but hunts out to remember later.

If a dog can go out into space, why can't a man? And if a man ventures into space, can the intrepid homesteader be far behind?

Not Prepared

Yet, alas, the Bureau of Land Management is no more prepared to grant homesteading rights on the moon than it was on that historic day when it heard from Farnsworth.

Farnsworth lived in Glen Ellyn, Ill., and was president of the U.S. Rocket Society.

"Many of our members," Farnsworth said then, "write in and ask how they go about filing a claim to land on the moon. This may be a reality within a generation."

Well, the land management boys had to admit this stumped them, but they did the best they could.

In this country, homesteading always has been connected closely with farming. The homesteader must go in person and pick out a likely piece of land. Then he must hustle to the nearest land office—unfortunately for the moonsteader this would be 240,000 miles away—and file his claim.

Yet this still doesn't satisfy government requirements. He must give evidence that he truly wants to live there. Taking the wife and kiddies along is splendid evidence. So is a cow or two.

Possibly this doesn't quite fit the picture the average moon-struck homesteader had in mind, but the law is the law and what can you do?

No Progress

A check with the bureau today showed absolutely no progress has been made.

Anyone who writes in — and there have been quite a few — is answered with a form letter in which it's pointed out that the United States never has claimed it owns the moon and hence has no acres to parcel out. And, anyway, tricky international problems are involved.

Take air, for instance.

International lawyers seem agreed that each nation owns the air over it for as high as the atmosphere extends. Then, as Dr. John W. Brewer, professor of international law at George Washington University has said, "It's every man's land, or no man's land."

The office encyclopedia says the atmosphere extends "to a height estimated at from 100 miles to 500 miles and upward." Which seems pretty nebulous for a man interested in staking out a claim.

Nor is the Naval Research Laboratory much help.

How high does the atmosphere go? "A touchy international problem," a scientist there said.

All in all, a bad day for a potential moon homesteader.

We're not even sure here now high up is up.

Children Die While Sleeping

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4 (AP)—Three children died today—possibly from food poisoning—while their mother slept nearby.

Officials estimated Sue Ann Gallagher, 12, Mary, 10, and Bobby, 4 had been dead seven to eight hours before they were found by an uncle.

Old Men

The 30-year-old mother, Dorothy Gallagher, said she fed the youngsters some week-old meat last night and that they became ill shortly afterward.

"I thought it was that Asian flu. They were just plain sick," she said after being hospitalized for treatment of shock.

Mary and Sue Ann were lying side by side in one bed. Bobby was in bed with his mother.

Angry Burglars Set Fire

TRENTON, N.J., Nov. 4 (AP)—Burglars apparently set an office afire this morning in a fit of pique after ripping open a safe and finding just a few dollars, authorities said.

The blaze gutted the Trenton sales office of the Electrolux Corp., smoldering for four hours before it was discovered.

Papers

Mercer County Fire Lt. Oscar Jones said it looked like the thieves set fire to a pile of papers in both the front and back of the office.

Leonard Immerman, Electrolux branch manager, said he had deposited his weekend sales receipts in the bank Saturday night. The ripped safe, he said, "looked as though someone had opened a can of peaches."

Lewis Doesn't Plan New Demands

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—John L. Lewis was reported today to have told the soft coal industry that no new wage demands will be made now.

Lewis told industry leaders also that they have no contract obligation to give miners a three-day Christmas holiday with $40 pay.

Lewis is president of the United Mine Workers.

Provision

The contract provided for the Christmas holiday last year and some miners were reported none too happy about not getting it this year.

Lewis was reported holding back on any move for a new contract because he feels coal sales are "soft" at the moment.

He wrote industry leaders as follows:

"Adverting to the Christmas vacation provision in the national bituminous coal wage agreement, the undersigned authoritatively advises as follows: That in the absence of negotiations and agreement between the parties, which has not yet occurred, no contractual obligation exists for the idling of miners during the forthcoming 1957 Christmas period or the payment of vacation monies."
